

DIY Investments vs. Advised Investments

If you are considering making investments and are unsure if you want to involve a specialist advisor, be sure to evaluate the full picture.

We asked our clients for their insight on the matter and they came back with the following.

Stack the odds in your favour

DIY Investments

- More appropriate for smaller investment amounts
- If something were to go wrong the consequences for you are less dramatic
- Possible with some personal research and planning

Advised Investments

- Have larger amounts to invest
- Growth in your portfolio is important to you
- You don't want to get it wrong as there's more at stake
- You have less time to manage investments effectively
- You are at the stage where you want to enjoy life and not have to closely monitor your investments
- Inflation needs to be considered with expert knowledge
- The world we live in is getting increasingly complex and difficult to predict
- Advisors have the industry knowledge to make good and well-informed decisions
- Getting an advisor that is an industry expert can improve the success of the investment
